

Schubert / Ellington

An encounter between Franz Schubert and Duke Ellington - impossible to imagine? Not at all, for the four superb musicians who got together this year to release a CD linking the two composers, both of whom wrote music of unparalleled beauty and simplicity. This concert pays homage not only to music but also to the beauty and fragility of the voice in all its infinite variety, to the sonority of the cello, and to the plangent song of the clarinet. The four musicians break down barriers between classical music and jazz, and between classical and contemporary music, as they fulfil their desire to transcend norms and look for new forms of expression. Come and discover - with them - the musical resonances that exist between Schubert and Ellington, despite the century that separates them.
